INTERGALACTIC MINUTE MINDER

from $114,900 | www.thehourglass.com

If you've ever considered sailing a pirate galleon into the outer reaches of the galaxy, you're looking at the watch that should adorn your wrist while doing it. Half steampunk chic, half ship's bridge, its combination of raised cone-style dials (one for hours and one for minutes) and exposed 304-piece movement somehow simultaneously screams sci-fi and traditional. Flip it over and it reveals its secret: two ceramic bearings that drive the dials on its goggle-eyed face. There's even one to tell you if it's day or night.

Handy, if you're sailing into outer space.
